whe hope that Mass Chitwoods writings in poetry and prose will be collected by some surviving friend or relative for publication, and it would give us pleasure to render our assistance in auch a work. It would be to us a labor of duty and love. There is, in what Mass C. has written, not only a brilliant promise of what she would have done, but very much of graceful and beautiful fulfillment. She has uttered thoughts, which, we believe, will never circ in the great heart of humanity. Perhaps ber name may not sunvive her generation, it is possible that her poetry, even before the lapse of many years, may be engulfed beneath the surrough waves of tune, but we religiously believe that there are influences from her life and words not destined to pass a way. Those is fluences are soft and gende zephtyr passing on to join, the storm of beneafceat might that shall sweep and purity the earth.

THE DEATH OF A POATESS.—We have seldom been so deeply pamed as by the intelligence of the death of Miss Mary Louisa Chit-wood, of Mt. Carmel, Indiana. We grieve at berloos, for she was our very dear personal friend and one of the brightest among the young women of genius in this country. She was for a long time a writer of poelry for the Lo isvilled Journal; and every reader has admired the 11ch. ital for their party at the South by forcing a lask no quarter-my party on that basis to have such an organization a mise.

Mr. Fuller—I'll leave that to the people who politics, like a tone of music among rudevoices, a "sweet benediction in the eternal curse"
